Abstract: We will discuss the inherent problems which arise when computing with matrix groups defined over finite fields. We will survey existing techniques and describe promising alternatives which exploit randomness.