Abstract Several relative geometric inequalities (involving the minimum and the maximum relative instrinsic diameters) on a centrally symmetric convex surface will be discussed. It will be shown the relation of these inequalities with two classical metric problems for convex surfaces: the farthest point problem and the Aleksandrov conjecture on the absolute isodiametric inequality.